WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 (WP) .- The United States tried today lose the book on Israel's charges that Egypt violated the Suez il standstill agreement, and appealed for a prompt atart to e talks under United Nations mediator Gunnar Jarring. ## UN's Big 4 Meet, Decide Next Step Is Up to Jarring

Aug. .19 (Reuters).—The UN representatives of the Blg Four powers discussed the Middle East for almost two hours today and considered ways of getting the proposed Arab-Israeli peace talks under way without further delay.

Diplomatic sources said the four envoys expressed disap-pointment that the talks had still not started almost two weeks after a 90-day cease-fire went into effect.

But the feeling was that the Big Pour could do little to belp the situation until UN Middle East mediator Gunnar Jarring reached agreement with Egypt, Jordan and Israel on the site, timing and particularly the diplomatic level of the talks.

The Blg Four ambassadors, who are expected to play a role once substantive matters come under discussion, agreed to meet again on Sept. 2. Their deputies will meet tomorrow to continue drawing up a memorandum of progress since the four-power sessions began in April, 1969.

Blowtorches Open Riviera Beach To Public on Minister's Order

LE LAVANDOU, France. Aug. 19 (UPI).—The tiny, rocky Riviera cove of Nonchaloir today rejoined the ranks of public beaches in France—but it took a ministerial order and municipal blowtorches to do it.

Acting in accordance with edicts dating from 1589 and 1681. Housing and National Equipment Minister Albin Chalandon issued a statement Monday affirming that all beaches on France's coastline are public.

The statement followed an incident a week ago when three persons were allegedly driven from the Nonchaloir cove by a hail of stones and a warning shot fired by a friend of the owner of the villa overlooking the cove.

Denis Cavatore and Pascal Guy, both 13, and Emile Roux, 23, and police a 70-year-old friend of Mrs. Melida Giny, owner of the villa, drove them from the beach after they had reached it by swhaming round spiked grilles placed at each end of the rock-

Municipal authorities, acting on a ministerial order, sent workin with blowtorches yesterday to remove the grilles. Mrs. Giny, who had obtained a municipal authorization 22 years ago to construct a diving board on the beach in front of her villa thimed the permission made her cove private and the grilles were necessary to keep "undestrable intruders" away.

floor off Florida carrying its cargo of 67 tons of nerve gas, one of the most extraordinary storice of human ignorance, arrogance and confused blundering comes to an end. Code-named by the Pentagon as Operation Chase ("cut holes and sink 'em"), it might better have been called Operation Bungle.

These gases ought never to have heen manufactured in the first place. When it was decided to get rid of them, they should have been detoxified rather than encased in concrete to insure their sinking in the water. When they were placed in concrete. a record should have been kept of which "coffins" contained the VX gas, which is much more persistent than the GB gas.

No one comes out of this affair with any credit. Even the United Nations committee on the peaceful uses of the seahed ducked out. Now meeting in Geneva, it might have been expected to protest this threat io the ocean on hehalf of the world community. Inetead it postponed action, thereby making certain that any protest it issued would he too late to have any practical effect.

The nightmare of the nerve gas is not ended with this sinking. The Army has thousands of tons of additional gaees. There is, for example, a stockpile of approximately 15.000 tons of GB nerve gas and mostard gas on Okinawa. It has to be removed since the United States hae promised to return Okinawa to the Japanese. The Army had planned to store the gas in Oregon, Washington and Alaska.

Backing away from stiff public protests from those states, the Army now hopes to pot it on American-owned Johnston Island southwest of Hawail. But that would be illegal under legislation approved by the Senate and now befors a Senate-House conference committee. The legislation would forbid the gas being moved to "the United States," which presumably includes Johnston Island.

There are no detoxification facilities on Johnston Island but these could be made available. It would be preferable to detoxify the gases there rather than on heavily populated Okinawa, and certainly preferable

International Opinion

As the old Liberty ship sinks to the ocean to hiding them away somewhere or dumping them in the sea.

Tuesday's sinking off Florida dramatizes the "ultimate folly" of chemical and bacteriological weapons. Like sorcerer's apprenticee, government scientists and military officials have been preparing these horror weapons in secret. Now that the public has awakened to these mysterious goings-on, the reckless magicians rush about trying to drown their mistake.

The one encouraging note is that President Nixon has decided, after long delay. to resubmit to the Senate the Oeneva protocol banning the use of gas in warfare. But the public cannot he certain that this folly is at an end until all chemical and bacteriological weapons programs are halted and all existing stocks of such weapons destroyed.

Footnote to Kidnappings

The Most Rev. Helder Camara is called the "Red Bishop" because he fights for social justice in Brazil's impoverished northeast, criticizes military dictatorships in his own and other countries, and often supports radical reform caucee in Latin America.

Before leaving for the United States to accept the Martin Luther King Award from the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. Bishop Camara was moved by the murder of Dan A. Mitrione in Uruguay to condemn in the strongest terms the use of political kidnappings to further social revolution in the Americae. He said that "a minimum of Christian and human sensibillty" required the deploring of such acts as "inhuman and absurd,"

To that the hishop added something equally pertinent, which should not be lost, particularly on repressive and reactionary governments: "I hope to God that in the whole world there will very soon be conditions of justles which will prevent such actions." It would be hard to improve on that statement. THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Sincere Debate

It would be hard to overestimate the sincerity of this private debate within the Nixon administration, but the President's decision never was perfectly clear. He opposed his advisers who wanted to give a specific date for ending the shooting and evacuating the American troops. Hs felt that this would encourage the enemy to keep on brief dwells chiefly npon the constitutionalfighting and to refuse a negotiated compromise. Therefore, he was worried about the attempt of Senators George S. McGovern of South Dakota and Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon to legislate a deadline for American involvement in Vietnam.

NATO—2d Thoughts

By Chalmers M. Roberts

WASHINGTON .- "The $14 billion annual drain on U.S. resources is made even more anachronistic by the latest development in West German-Soviet relations." With those words Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield last week sounded the gong for the coming struggle over the American troop level in Europe after next June 30.

It has been evident for some time, certainly since the promulestion of the Nixon Doctrine, that in the repositioning of the United States abroad some changes would have to be made in the numbers of and payment for American troops in Europe, who now number around 300,000.

From Washingtou's point of view the first effort is to find out whether the Western Euro-pean NATO allies are prepared to pick up more of the tab and, if so, how much more. In essence, this means West Germany.

Bonn has sensibly sought to create a NATO cover for this exercise and the European ministers will meet in September to consider the problem. West German Defense Minister Helmut Schmidt says any additional costs to Bonn will have to come out of his defense budget and thus would mean comparable cots in the

Brussels Session

By December, when all the NATO ministers meet in Brussels, it should be evident who is willing to pay what. This coincides with the time when President Nixon decides what to put into his next budget to cover costs of U.S. forces in Europe.

Mr. Nixon, Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird and Secretary of State William P. Rogers all have been dropping clear hints that the U.S. cannot hold the present troop level past mid-1971, the end of fiscal year 1971, unless the Europeans pick up the tab or most of lt. Here enters the coincidence of the new turn in East-West relations in Europe, highlighted by last week's West German-Soviet treaty signing in Moscow. Mansfield and others, this lowers the temperature of the current kind of cold war and means that troops can safely be withdrawn. The halt in such talk occasioned by the Red Army invasion Czechoslovakia in 1968 is over.

Soviet Pressure Tied to this is the Russian pressure, evident in Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin's talk with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, for convening a European security conference. In June the Warsaw Pact nations, in calling again for such a conference, suggested that the conference could set up body concerned with questions of European security and cooperation" and indicated that such a "body" could discuss "the reduotion of foreign armed forces on the territory of European states."

This was an answer, though not a direct one, to an earlier NATO call for a discussion of what the West calls "mutual balanced force reductions." NATO planners have been working up various "models" of such reductions that should be ready for consideration at Brus-

Recently the Soviet diplomatic grapevine has been passing the message to the United States that perhaps mutual balanced force reductions is possible, a sort of follow-up message to the Warsaw Pact statement.

In Washington this problem is still at lower levels. To date there has been no National Security Council review, but that is expected by late fall. Laird has said the U.S. will not accept any manfor-man cuts of American and Soviet troops because of the greater distance U.S. forces would travel to go home from Central Europe.

But this asymmetrical proposal pensation in the form, say, of a cut in American tactical weapons now in Western Europe. That opens another can of diplo-

Crime Mystery

By Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON.—The latest enescionedia on crime put out by the Federal Bureau of Investigation teaches a paradoxical les-son. The 1969 FM statistics basically show how nittle we really Crime, in fact, is a social mystery. And because the political consequences can be decisive, the wise attitude is one of far more restraint and austerity than most of us have recently shown.

The one sure thing we know about crime is that it is rapidly on the rise. The FRI numbers showed that during the decade of the sixties violent crime ross by 146 percent. A not small part of the population has at one time or another been robbed or as-saulted. Seven people in every hundred thousand get murdered annually. The murder category is up by 6 percent since last year

The reasons behind this spectacular increase, however, are not well understood. The FBI, quite rightly, does not pretend to have authoritative answers. That leaves the field open to speculation.

Overcrowding

One theory, put out by some British sociologists, stresses over-crowding. In this view, people are being packed so closely together in offices, factories, homes, and while vacationing and in transit, that hostile and aggressive feelings are bred as never before. Another theory stresses the media—the ap-petites whetted by the sight of the goodies of the rich now put on display in every home by television. Then there is, as always, the theory of moral degradation— a decline in the standards brought about by loose living and permis-

What to do about crims is even more a matter of dispute. It is probably safe to say that there is no area where the remedies favored hy popular folklore are more at variance with the systematic findings.

The popular reaction to crimethe feeling that most of us have as a matter of instinct—emphasizes the mobilization of counter-force. It is partial to more and bigger weapons for the police, to a less scrupulous observance of the procedures protecting suspects and defendants. It feeds civilian vigiagainst those who are different in race or cultural style. But expert findings by such hodies as the President's Commi elon on Law Enforcement or the President's Commission on Violence emphasize far different curs.

Virtually all experts stress the crucial importance of improving a penal system which, as now constituted, tends to breed rather than to scotch crime.

Speedier Justice

More rapid judicial procedure as Chief Justice Warren Burge indicated in his recent State of the Judiciary report, are also identified as critical. So are by: ter-trained police, improved community relations, cleaning up po-lice corruption, and getting more cops out of offices and onto the beat. As to vigilantes, Attorney General John Mitchell receits spent nearly a full day in meet-ings designed to get citizen action against crime into the hands of experienced lawyers.

Knowing which way to go these issues is the more difficult because the choices are systematically distorted by self-interestat political figures and movement Not only are there law-and-order politices who overstate the among of crime and over-promise that their pat remedies can do.

Far more important are these on the other side of the issue who challenge the law enforcement system for revolutionary ends. The Chicago Seven, for instance, plainly used their case to try to discredit the judicial system, and it is appalling that they have received so much sympathy among sep-posedly educated persons. It is equally plain that the police are now being deliberately pushed into confrontation situations by grown associated with the Black Panther -as witness the recent shoot-on in San Rafael and its seeming connections with Huey Newton and Angela Davis.

Making sensible decisions in this climate is not easy. Hard thinking and discriminating choices as required. In that contest, the wide publicity given to President Nixon's unfortunate comments en the Manson trial and to the drag case involving juveniles in the Kennedy family are relevant. #### Mr. Turki Replies

Two of your readers wrote (IHT Aug. 14) to take exception with some points I made in my article, dealing with the Palestinian problem, which appeared in the Aug. 10 Herald Tilbune.

In both letters, the writers make an issue of holding the Palestinian people responsible for voluntarily selling land to early Jewish settlers, thereby negating their claim to having been driven out, or their right for repatriation. It must be pointed oot that initially no opposition to Jewish settle-ment in Palestine existed by the indigenous population, for the Arab world had in the past accepted settlement on its territory by a foreign people who may or may not have wished to preserve their old culture. language and traditions (witness the case of the Armenians in the Middle East). Selling land to Jewish immigrants ceased, however, when it became known that they harbored intentions of creating & Jewish state in Palestine, 2 country alreads inhabited by a people.

At any rate, holding title for a piece of land does not imply one for a homeland. Our objection was not to foreigners in hut foreign occupation of, our country. And the claim that the Jews, who had lived in Palestine two thousand years before, were now "returning" is invalid. The historian will readily find an obvious rebuttal for thet argument.

In his letter, Mr. A.V.A. of Belglum, asserts that it is a "fabrication that the Palestinians were driven out."

I submit it was the policy of the various terrorist organizations of Zioniam operating in 1948 to conduct a campaign of terror against the Arab community, and frighten as many people as possible into fleeing, thereby insuring a homogeneous Israel.

Mr. A.V.A. further attributes our highest literacy rate in the Middle East to the fact that we very under British mandate. The in-plication in the statement was no sense. Why did we still have not less, but more high-school and university graduates long after the benevolent and cultured care of the British had ceased?

I wish to add that nowhere in my article did I suggest, as a resder claimed, that the Palestinian people were ethnically different from those in the Levant; I merely discussed their cultural, temperamental and social differences.

Finally Mr. A.V.A. challenges ma to ponder the proverb: Palestine is the sand under Tel Aviv.

The proverb is his, not much F. TURKL Amsterdam.

One-Termer

Every time President Nizon commits a major blooper, such as the Cambodian invasion, the vetoing of the school and housing appropriation bills, he repeats that he is aware that this may make him a oue-term President, that it may cost him votes, etc. I, for one, am willing to take the President's hints at face value and interpret these actions as a strong desire not to run again in 1972. However, I would recommend to Mr. Nixon a much less costly way to implement his desire. Instead of heaping disease upon disaster on the country in order to force the voters to reject him, as they did the unlamented L. Johnson in 1968, Mr. Nixon could simply state that he nome not intend to run again. The country might then be spared further calamities, and Mr. Nixon could concentrate on doing things right and piling up a good record for the remaining two years of his term. ARIS ANAGNOS.

DINING OUT: A Parisian Station for Wine-Lovers

By Jon Winroth PARIS, Aug. 19.—A gastro-momic palace in a French railroad station? Of course, every station has its buffet. But how many can boast an elegant restaurant with two Michelin stars? And a large and excellent wine cellar? And a lovely outdoor terrace overlooking a large square?

The Gare de l'Est can make such claims. The Relais Gastronomique Paris-Est has a grandiose décor from the late '40s, when Gabriel Lavrut took it over and decided to make it into a great restaurant. His first cook, René Visud, picked up the two stars almost at once and his sommelier, Louis Le Bail, presided over a magnificent callar.

Today Mr. Viaud is dead, but, in his place, Marcel Mérias and, while Mr. Le Ball has been hired away by the Plaza-Athenee, the cellar still holds some 200,000 bottles of exceptional quality, variety and age.
As a matter of fact, the simple care du jour, contains bottles up to 20 and 30 years old that are ready to drink without advance warning.

In the cellar, great old years such as 1929 are represented in profusion, but there is no lack of '19s, '16s, '16s and on back to the end of the last century. There are bottles of Château Villemanrine, a classified grand cru of Saint-Emi-lion, deting back to 1865, 75, '89 and 33, as well as more recent vintages of that century and the present one.

An. 1865, if they will sell it, will cost 500 francs ($91), but there is some 1847 Châteauneut-du-Pape going for a mere 15 francs ($2.75) and the 1949 costs only 20 francs ($3.65)! They might as well give it

The port starts from 1863 and the cognac from 1805, 1810 and 1830. Believe it or not, most of these are even available by the glass. Is it any wonder that wine lovers, including the president of the French Republic when he was prime minister, are regulars here any time they feel like sphirging? The Relais Paris-Est is obviously a rather expensive restaurant, and the temptation to try outstanding bottles almost invariably makes it more so.

Paris Bakers Lose Battle for Big Baguette

PARIS.-French bakers have tried to give Parisians more for more of their money, but the government won't hear of it.
When they were authorized to raise the price of the traditional 250-gram baguette three centimes to 58 centimes (10.5 cents) early this week, the bakers knew they had a problem: there weren't enough one-cen-time coins in circulation for the odd change.

They solved that problem by baking a larger baguette (260 grams) and selling it for a larger but easier to handle price (60 centimes)

Then came the cry from the Pinance Ministry bureaucrats, The authorized increase was three centimes for a 250-gram baguette and that's the way it must be, they said.

The ministry also said it would take the necessary steps to make sure there are enough coins for bakers to give back the odd change.

First Investors International Mining & Petroleum

S.A. Luxembourg

$7\frac{1}{2}\%$ appreciation

Summary of Quarterly Report to 2nd July 1970 The net asset value of the Fund after one year of operating stands at $10.73 which reflects an overall appreciation of some 71% since the Fund was launched and a performance which has outperformed the Dow Jones Index by 28.3% and the Financial Times Index by 17% and the Financial Times Actuaries Mining Finance Index by 15.3%

This performance in the face of the worst stock marker conditions for 25 years, has been achieved by a combination of selecting a sound investment base and trading actively. and confirms the Directors' belief that in times of uncertainty well managed investments into the field of natural resources gives a security of investment oot otherwise found.

While maintaining its heavy concentration in nickel shares which have considerably outperformed the market, the Fund's liquidity has been increased in recent weeks to over 10%. Receotly, also, the Fund has purchased Gold shares, as a safeguard against any adverse effect of the U.S. balance of payments which might lead to renewed doubts about the dollar.

It seems that the decline in oil shares may have run its course and there has recently been a welcome recovery. However, the mining area currently appears more attractive and your Board intends at present to retain the majority of its investments to that sector.

THE CRYSTAL CAVE By Mary Stewart. Morrow. 521 pp. $7.95.

MRS. MUNCK

By Elia Leffland. Houghton Mifflin. 336 pp.

Reviewed by Sara Blackburn

FIFTH-CENTURY Britain is the setting of Miss Stewart'a new novel "The Crystal Cave," and its hero is the magical Merlin, seen here from his youth as a court bastard in Wales through the far-flung adventures that lead him to guide the destiny of King Arthur as he rules Britain. It is, as the author notes, not a work of scholarship, but "a work of the imagination," and its hero offers Miss Stewart fine opportunity for building the kind of colorful romance that has made her books so widely read in this country.

In Miss Stewart's version, Merlin is a solitary but game little boy whose Sight is kept secret during the difficult child-hood he spends in the court of his grandfather, the King of Wales, where he is recognized as the result of a dark coupling between the king's daughter and the devil himself. After clandestine seminars in the cave of an old and learned wizard, and the acquisition of five languages, he escapes by necessity to "Less Britain" and the protection of kindly Count Ambrosius, where he not only learns true and proud identity, but becomes a trusted participant and even initiator in the struggle which is to emite all of Britain. There is an impressive cast of characters, and many of them are drawn in considerable dimension, so that Miss Stewart makes it easy for us to imagine that this is what life might have been like in a still-divided Britain as it moved to free itself from the effects of Roman rule. It is perhaps unnecessary to add that the novel is peppered throughout with the regulation political intrigues, formidable nunneries, fierce battle scenes, and secret ceremonies—there is even a bit of Druid rite and human sacrifice-so necessary to the atmosphere of such romances. But Miss Stewart brings them off with an easy talent for making them real elements of the plot, not mere sideshow devices, and her Merlin makes a narrator quite worthy of the large audience that will doubtless be following his adventures this summer. She is no Zoë Oldenbourg, nor does she pretend to be.

People who like the work of Harold Pinter might enjoy 'Mrs. Munck," a morbid, well-written suspense hovel about why a widow has waited 25 years to keep a crippled old man captive in her house and subject him to humiliation and physical torture. Miss Leffland demonstrates a nice skill for character and setting as she traces the early years of "Mrs. Munck," from childhood on a Western farm to work in the city, the birth and death of a baby, and a long marriage to a dull man, endured, in a small town on the California coast, only for the sake of eventual revenge. The revenge is for an act she has never really lived beyond; how she uses it when her chance arrives, and whether is worth what she has paid in is the heart of the novel. To intrigue and suspense give 16 Munck's saga a lot of mone tum, and those who are with to follow the depressing detail of her life will be well reward with surprises at the end. M Leffland's novel is bigh superior to most of the cure entries in the modern got genre which it represents h her publishers do it more has than good by comparing it, they do in the flap copy. "Wuthering Heights."

in a big way.

In 1965, playing football for Sonthern Connecticut State College, he became a ball-carrier for the first time and gained more than 800 yards for the 82830D. In 1966, the New York Jets signed him as a free agent and moved him to guard. He made the team and was learning his new position until be hurt a knee and underwent surgery. The next day he walked, four days later he was out of the hospital, three days after that he was at practice and four

He has a 57-inch chest, 31-inch waist, 29inch thigh, 21-inch bicep and 18 1/2-inch neck. He is 25 years old, bright and well spoken. He was raised in Hamden. Conn., lives in nearby North

He is now training in Venice. Calif., near Los Angeles. Last week he visited the luxurious spa at the La Costa Resort Hotel and Spa here and talked about life as a bodybuilder. "A lot of people have misconceptions about bodybuilding," he said. "People try to put other people down so they can elevate themselves. They see an overdeveloped build and say the guy is a bomosexual or in love with himself.

"The sport got a bad name from Muscle Beach, where showoffs preened and flexed muscles. Most of them developed their muscles to hide inferiority complexes. But the sport is changing." Is bodybuilding really a sport?

"Definitely," he said. "Just as in any other sport, you deform a particular task. And like any other sport, it requires dedication, time and effort." Extreme Dedication .

The dedication, time and effort run to extremes. Katz trains five to seven hours a day, mostly with weights and pulleys. He eats fantastic amounts of food, almost exclusively proteins and carbo-hydrates. He consumes four to five pounds of meat a day. He does not smoke or drink. At his wedding three years ago, he even faked the champagne toest (so did his wife, Nancy, who just doesn't like champagne). The tangible rewards for this Spartan life are few. "I'm a professional," Katz, "but I can't make a living at it unless I own a gym or get into the movies or make TV commercials. If I become Mr. America, I get a trophy and nothing else. But I never did this to earn a living. I wouldn't take money to do it unless I really wanted to do it.

"I'm happy. I'm big. I'm not a show off—I don't even own a short-sleeved shirt. I don't think I'm a freak. I think I'm what everybody should look like if everybody had the time to train for it and wanted to be that way."

Namath Shows Up for Jets Practice, Still Uncertain About Football Future

By Michael Strauss

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y., Aug. 19 (NYT).—Joe Namath, absent from the Jets' first 11 training days and two exhibition games, rejoined his teammates yesterday but still was expressing uncertainty about his football future.

"Physically, I don't think I can play," said the shaggy-haired quarterback. "I'm going to find out whether I can or not in the next few weeks." "Are the knees still the major problem?" Namath was asked.

Yes. I've been dancing and they hurt even after I dance," he answered in a tone that indicated that he might be joking. "But I haven't dropped back to throw a football since last December. My knees really haven't been tested." Namath's return was similar to his belated one last fall. A large corps of press, radio end television representatives and a few thousand curious observers were here to greet him. He offered one different touch before engaging in a light workout with his teammates at Hofstra University. He refused to talk to the press. He said he was ready to cooperate with radio and television interviewers, however, "Everything that's been written about me is a lie," he said.

PALERMO.—As a distinguished student of European driving habits and their effect on the human heart. I wish to make a statement. Of all the peoples I have studied so far.

there are none to compare with the Sicilian Onc drivers. only has to be on the winoing roads of beautiful country a few hours to understand why so many Siciliaos left the island

Buchwald and came to America.

To comprehend the problems facing a driver in Sicily, one must first take note of what can be found on the Sicilian highway during the course of a day's drive. There are, and not necessarily in this order, four-cylinder Fiats, eight-cylinder Ferraris, 12-cylinder Alfa Romeos, hay trucks, gasoline trucks, motorcycles, motor scooters, hicycles, horse-drawn wagons, donkey carts, handdrawn carts, dogs, goats, sheep, chickens, children, fishermen, members of the clergy, carahinierl and highway bandits. It has been said that the dreaded members of the Mafia are Boy Scouts compared to the people who have drivers' licenses in Sicily.

For one thing, the traditional omerta, or conspiracy of silence that Sicilians are known for does not apply to anything that happens on the road. When one Sicilian passes another, he will shout at him that he is a fool, an idiot and his mother was a goat, and, if really angered, that his father was a policeman.

The mao passed will retort with words of equal passioo, and will, if the wind is right, spit at the other car. Since Sicilians must use their hands when making expressive statements, neither driver has his hands on

If there are other passengers in the cars, they, too, will join us the argument. Even after the man who is doing the passing has made the maneuver, he will look back, waving hoth hands at the driver he has passed, who in furn will retort by either waving his hands or pressing the horn for as long as the battery will allow.

The only place one Sicilian will pass another Sicilian is on a curve. Occasionally a car or fruck will be coming the other way and then the driver faces what is known in Sicily as "the moment of truth."

If he swerves to avoid the oncoming car he will be considered a coward and his whole family will be in disgrace. He must force the other car to swerve. To see two brave men meering face-to-face on a Sicillan highway is a sight one will never forget.

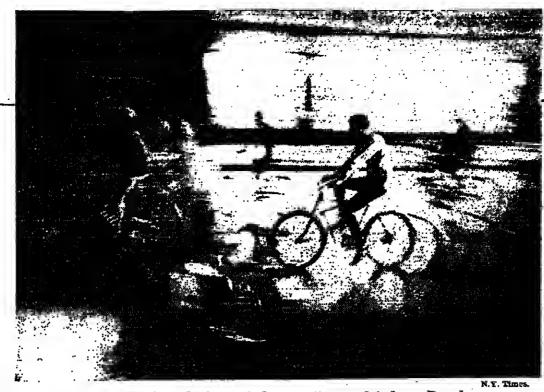

The one thing that can slow up a Sicilian driver is B donkey cart. All the donkey carts in Sicily are beautifully painted with pictures of knights in armor aud scenes of great battles. Drivers of donkey carts get most of their sleep on the roads of Sicily and the donkeys seem to also.

A donkey cart can be found on any side of a Sicilian road, going in any direction. Although the carts themselves only take up one lane, the hay the carts carry is purposely lald horizontally across them, taking up two or sometimes three lanes, thus making it impossible for anyone to see what is happening up

Donkey drivers are used to the sound of automobile horns and can rarely he waked up hy one. The best thing you can do when you're caught behind a donkey cart is to relax and enjoy the painted pictures.

It is an accepted fact that when a Sicilian car is approaching a village, the driver speeds up and presses his hand on the horn as hard as he can. But instead of frightening the villagers, it has exactly the oppo-site effect. Children rush out of their bouses at the sound of a horn and start playing in the streets, dogs out minding sheep rush into town to find out what is going on, and chickens start crossing the road to get to the

The driver, who has his honor at stake, refuses to slow down and the village population refuses to get out of his way. I can't tell you how it is possible for a car to get through a village without bitting anything since I've always had my eves closed when I've gone through Cyclists pass lighted store window as they pedal down Broadway.

By Michael T. Kaufman

NEW YORK (NYT).—For nearly four hours in the early morning stillness a few days ago, a procession of 350 giddy insomniac hicyclists coasted over asphalt and cobblestones on a tour of Manhattan's parks and architectural landmarks. The often uneven line ranged over wide boulevards and funneled ltself into narrow lanes. For long stretches of space the riders were the only things that moved—with the surrounding hulks of stone and steel baffling their gasps

"You ride through all this and you see it without people, and it really makes you feel that it's yours, that it's your city," said one young girl pedalling on lower Broadway.

It was 2:30 a.m. when the cyclists assembled. A tall man in blue shorts climbed onto the lower lip of the Pulitzer Fountain at Fifth Avenue and 59th Street and welcomed the riders with a bullhorn that may have startled some guests at the nearby Plaza Hotel. He identified himself as Robert Makla of the Friends of Central Park, the sponsoring agency for the predawn jaunt. The friends, the explained, are committed to protecting the city's patches of greenery from incursions of all sorts. At the same time, he added, the friends would like to heighten public awareness of the city's parkland pleasures, and to achieve that end in the past it had conducted walking tours. Mr. Makla, who spends most of his daylight hours as a Wall Street lawyer, said that yesterday's cause traffic would be light. What was not quite so logical, Mr. Makla observed, was the turnout. He had told the police that perhaps 50 people would show up, but an hour before departure he revised the estimate to 200. But according to one tabulator there were 323 persons, another counter set the figure at 346, and a third at 352.

"Tour de Friends" was just a logical extension of those strolls. The early morning was selected for bicycling be-

And there was 8-year-old Margaret Kleeberg, who said that the latest she had ever been up before was until midnight, on New Year's. Her mother said they would ride as long as Margaret could stay awake.

At 2:45, after observing that the Grand Army Plaza's statue of Gen. Sherman had been advancing on the statue of Fair Abundance for 50 years, Mr. Makla gave the order to move out and the cyclists streamed onto and down Fifth Avenue headed for Paley Park, on 53d Street. The bikes clog Fifth Avenne as they stop before the arch, so cars start honking. "Isn't it nice to know that hikes can cause a traffic jam?" one girl says.

PEOPLE:

They're eating grouse again in London these days and paying through the nose to (Now there's an evocative image. Can't you just see Smedley, the waiter, discreetly approaching Lord Snodgrass with a hill for three pounds six and ten. Snodgrass plucks a spotless linen handkerchief from his left sleeve, raises it to his patrician phizz and honks out a fiver. "Keep the change. Smedley old fruit," sniffs Snodgrass. Smedley boots . . . Seriously, does anyone know the origin of "paying through the nose?")

Meanwhile, they're eating

days and paying dearly for the privilege, the price of grouseshooting having soared far beyond the average man's means, to say nothing of the dangers inherent in the noble sport. The season opened last Wednesday ("The glorlons 12th"), when the ultimate in chic was a grouse dinner at Claridge's or the Savoy at up-wards of £4 ($9.60) per portion, air transport from the Scottish moors compris. The diners' hill will diminish as the season wears on, though the cost to the shooter-known as gun"-remains virtually prohibitive. Tax-hitten lairds of the large grouse moors, who used to pop for the peers, now lease their grounds to syndi-cates which, in turn, charge up to £2,000 ($4,800) for a fortnight's hash at the hirds, added, of course, to a like investment for a pair of guns made to measure (de rigueur) London's South Audley

As for the risks involved, Reuters sets the scene as follows:

"The aristocrat on a Scottish moor does not stir from the butt during the first of three or four 'drives' by the beaters during the day. His loader pre-pares the two guns, beaters stir up a covey of grouse and a hip flask is handy to steady his nerves. If he brings down a few birds, a golden re-triever or Lahrador fetches them. Driven grouse fly at a terrific speed and should be shot as they approach the butt. The shooter who swings round to get one he missed may hit the gun-loader in the next hutt ... Whence, we presume, derives the old English sporting cry of "Yoicks!"

All of which somehow puts us in mind of a similarly polgnant episode as recorded in Time magazine some 14 years ago. A group of refugees was fleeing the country shortly after the brutal repression of the 1956 Hungarian revolution.
